ENGLISH INCONSISTENCY.

The Support Given Miss Wells and the Missionary Ship's Regulators.

Miss Wells, the colored agitator from Tennessee, is meeting with some success in her mission to induce England to point the finger of scorn at America on account of the treatment of the negroes. This is the season of all manner of annual meetings of missionary, religious and philanthropic societies, and all of them are asked to pass scorching resolutions condemning negro lynching and color distinctions in America. Most of the meetings respond willingly, not to say diligently.

I paid a visit yesterday, by invitation of the London Missionary society, one of the oldest and wealthiest of these bodies, to the missionary ship John Williams, so named for the famous missionary who was killed and eaten by the natives of the New Hebrides. The ship is the largest and finest of its class and is intended to cruise among the Pacific islands. I was especially interested in the large, airy deck cabins, sumptuously fitted for 12 white missionaries. Looking about casually, I discovered another so called cabin forward between decks and fitted with bunks arranged in tiers for 30 colored missionaries. The difference was greater than between the staterooms of the Lucerne and the steerage. The distance between the white and black laborers in the Lord's vineyard was as much as the vessel would allow.

I made respectful inquiries as to the reason of this color distinction, apparently so invidious, and was informed that the black missionaries do not like to be made too comfortable, not being fitted by nature to appreciate creature comforts like their white brothers. They are good enough to be educated and civilized and to be ordained as ministers of Christ, but in traveling the London Missionary society considers it perfectly right to provide a steorage for colored pastors and a saloon for white ones. I endeavored to ascertain whether the colored gentlemen had ever had a choice in the matter, but my questions were received coldly and considered inquisitorial.—London Cor. New York Sun.

AN UNUSUAL CASE.

The Business Public of London Surprised to Learn of a Rich Man's Illiteracy.

The longer we live the less easily are we surprised at anything that happens. It will scarcely be believed, though, that one of the wealthiest and most prosperous of the London tradesmen of today can neither read nor write, and that his wife is equally as uneducated as he is! A short time ago a letter reached him at his private residence in the country, and as he observed that some figures representing a large sum of money occurred among the writing he had the document deciphered. It then appeared that it was a letter from another tradesman complaining that his account, a very large one, had not been paid, notwithstanding that repeated requests for payment had been sent to the business house in town. Until then he had no suspicion that his firm owed even a farthing.

He has placed the matter in the hands of solicitors, and already it has been discovered that he has lost over £100,000 by the alleged misappropriation of money intended to be used for purposes connected with the business. As he is immensely wealthy, and as his business is in a very flourishing condition, even so great a loss will not materially affect him. Nevertheless it is a curious circumstance that at this date in the nineteenth century a man has succeeded in building up a vast business and has accumulated a large fortune in the center of London without either he or his wife able to read or write.—London

Sewer Gas. Occasionally the question is heard that the healthiest of all occupations is that of sewer scavenging. In large cities the men, in spite of their filthy work, are proverbially healthy. Mr. Laws, a chemist, who has been employed in special investigations in the sewers by the London city council, has proved in a huge report that sewer gas is all but innocent of distributing bacteria of any kind, and certainly not those which are pathogenic. The sewage contains microbes of various kinds in abundance, but the gas itself is much freer from these dreaded organisms than the outer air of the street. Of all this he gives most convincing proof, and so challenges the theories which lay to the account of sewer gas a train of horrible ravages on health. This is a startling revelation and suggests that fresh inquiry is needed into the real causes of such mild illness traceable to drains and foul odors.—San Francisco Call.

The Duty of Resignation.

People in affliction say queer things, and it is wisely provided no doubt that at such times they are not considered strictly accountable. There is certainly a peculiar flavor in a remark made by a middle aged widow who had just buried her second husband. As is usual in such cases interested friends were making such complimentary remarks as occurred to them, dwellings, after the regulation fashion, upon the duty of resignation under the circumstances. "Oh, yes," the weeping widow murmured. "I know I ought to be reconciled, but I am not. I can't feel reconciled at all—not a single bit. Maybe I'll feel reconciled in a few months. But of course I can't promise."—Lexington Courier-Journal

SUBSTITUTES FOR MONEY.

The Congressional Record of June 4, 1894, contains the speech of Congressman Warner of New York on the Brawley bill to suspend the operations of the law imposing a tax of ten per cent. upon notes issued during the crisis of 1893. Mr. Warner shows the several kinds of expedients adopted by banks, clearing houses, corporations and merchants last summer to make up for a scarcity of money. The Congressional Record is embellished with fac similes of the certificates, notes, due bills and other substitutes for money issued between August 1, 1893, and January 1, 1894. New York city alone issued $41,495,000 in clearing-house certificates; Philadelphia issued $11,000,000 of them; Boston $11,448,000, and five other cities $5,000,000 additional, making in all about $69,000,000 in eight cities. In addition to this, banks, trusts and manufacturing companies issued certificates, due bills, etc., to the amount of several millions, in denominations ranging from 25 cents to $100.

When these substitutes for money were being issued Congress was at work in special session to repeal the Bullion Purchase act, which was increasing the currency from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 per year. It was proclaimed by the Secretary of the Treasury that there was more money in circulation than the business interests of the country required, and that the panic was caused by the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver monthly by the Government.

That there was not sufficient money in circulation a year ago was proved by the fact that the clearing-houses and banks issued certificates as a substitute for money, and as the circulating medium has been increased since then only by the coining of gold and a few millions of subsidiary silver coins, it shows that there is not enough money in circulation now. About two-thirds of the gold coinage of last year has been shipped to Europe, so that while the population of the country is increasing at the ratio of about two millions a year, the money of the country is not increasing at all, in fact it is decreasing, as more than the entire gold product of the country was exported last year.

If the people permit the present financial policy to be continued, in a few years there will not be five dollars per capita in circulation, wheat will not sell for more than twenty-five cents per bushel and the industrial army will be swelled to millions.

THE TARIFF GAME.

Last week the Democrats proposed a duty of 40 per cent. ad valorem on all sugars imported into the country. The Republicans, with the exception of Parks of California, Manderson of Nebraska and Quay of Pennsylvania, voted against the proposition. They assumed the role of free traders and voted accordingly. Now Senator Sherman gives notice that he will propose an amendment to the tariff bill providing for a duty of 40 per cent. ad valorem on wool. It is probable that the Democrats, with few exceptions, will oppose this amendment, as the Republicans did the duty on sugar.

This is the game of battledoor and shuttlecock which the Silver men assert the old parties are playing with the tariff question in Congress. The Republicar, who pose as protectionists, oppose a tariff on sugar, while the Democrats, who are charged with being free traders, favor protection for sugar. On wool the positions of the parties will probably be reversed and the Republicans will assume the role of protectionists.

If the object was to protect American industries, or even to adopt a tariff for revenue only, a reasonable duty would be placed on both sugar and wool, but as the tariff discussion is to make party capital and divide the people, one party opposes a tariff on sugar and the other opposes a tariff on wool.

EUREKA SILVER MEN.

A Rousing Meeting—Resolution Adopted. The Silver men of Eureka met last week in response to a call issued by the Silver League. Hon. Thomas Wren presided, and the Sentinel says the meeting was largely attended and great enthusiasm was manifested.

As there is practically but one party in Eureka county and the election law of this State, popularly known as the Australian ballot law, provides a fair and cheap method for nominating candidates for office by the people, it was resolved that no county convention of the Silver party be held in Eureka this year.

It was also resolved that the magnificent national flag presented by Chairman Nixon of the State Central Committee of the Silver party to the banner Silver county of the State, and now held by Eureka county, be awarded to the county polling the highest per centage of votes for the Silver party's candidate for Governor at the next general election.

The action of Senators Jones and Stewart and Representative Newlands in behalf of silver was unanimously endorsed by the meeting.

Resolutions relative to monetary and other national matters were adopted and with three rousing cheers for the Silver party the meeting adjourned.

Visiting Reno. Mrs. Charles A. Mantz and daughter, Mrs. R. Leonard, of St. Louis arrived from California Sunday night and will spend a few days in Reno visiting relatives. Mrs. Mantz is the widow of Charles A. Mantz, who, during his life time, was one of the proprietors and editor of the St. Louis Times. She is a lady well informed on the topics of the day and an excellent conversationalist, and notwithstanding she is an elderly lady, she would make many younger persons envious of her tact at anecdote and her unlimited list of reminiscences. She has been visiting relatives at several points on the coast, some of whom she has not seen for forty-odd years. She is the aunt of Mrs. E. C. Roff and the great aunt of Mrs. C. Lemery and Nata Roff of the JOURNAL.

SENATORS JONES and Stewart have voted together on every proposition that has been before the Senate since Congress convened in special session last August, yet Nevada goldbugs denounce one of the Senators as a free trader and Populist and have resolved to ask the other whether or not he is a Republican. That is as inconsistent as advocating free coinage while upholding a party that opposes it.

The Louisville Courier-Journal, which is opposed to a tariff on general principles, says there is a lack of uniformity in calling the Tariff bill the Wilson bill or the Gorman bill, as with a few more amendments it may be called the McKinley bill.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Quay Has a Tilt With Chandler—The Wines Schedules Adopted.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—In the Senate Quay rose to the question of privilege and sent to the clerk's desk what he characterized as a "lying statement, for which Senator Chandler is given as authority." It proved to be Washington dispatch to a New York paper which alleged that a Philadelphia syndicate, in which Quay was an active agent, was seeking to get control of the surface roads of Washington through Congressional legislation. The dispatch stated that the scheme was as malodorous as was the sugar trust scandal. The statements contained in the article, Quay said, were absolutely false.

Quay said he departed from his custom of treating with silent contempt the matter with newspaper lies about him, because the article was evidently written with the purpose of affecting legislation to-day, and because Chandler had been given as authority for the statements contained therein.

Chandler stated that he had heard of this syndicate and had perhaps discussed the matter with newspaper men, but knew little about it. Certainly he made no remarks attributing motives or relations to any Senator.

Quay suggested with a broad smile that this newspaper fabrication be referred to the "Scandal Committee," of which Gray was chairman. It was referred. The Tariff bill was then taken up.

Senator Sherman gave notice of an amendment to the Tariff bill providing for a duty of 40 per cent. ad valorem on wool.

The wines and spirits schedule was adopted, practically without change from the compromise plan. The cotton schedule was taken up.

THE GREAT STRIKE.

Rough Treatment of Prisoners—Flowing up of Bridges in Alabama.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 11.—The four American workmen who were taken prisoners by a mob of foreigners at New Haven Saturday, were overtaken at Fairchance and rescued at noon today by deputies. They were bearing placards and were chalkmarked from head to foot. They were handed from one crowd to another yesterday until landed in the striker's camp at Kyle. The deputies are collecting all the evidence available and many arrests will be made. It is estimated that not less than 500 strikers handled the workmen from the time of their capture at New Haven until rescued today.

DENVER, June 11.—The agreement made at Cripple Creek between General Brooks and Sheriff Bowers is not approved in all respects by Governor Waite. He wired Adjutant General Tarsney to-day that the troops are not to be used as guards. The miners arms will be restored to them and not over twenty-five miners will be arrested.

BIRMINGHAM, La., June 11.—The big iron bridge on the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham at Carbon Hill was blown up with dynamite this morning. Bridges at the Patton and Mabel mines and other points have been burned. The strikes are determined to prevent the transportation of coal.

SHOOTING IN VIRGINIA CITY.

William G. Cox was shot and seriously, if not fatally, wounded, by Ernest Herting, alias the Idaho Detective, in Virginia City about 12 o'clock Saturday night. The bullet entered the head near the temple, penetrating the outer table of the skull and glanced downward and came out behind the ear. It did not injure the brain. Herting went to his cabin, fired four shots at the officers who surrounded the cabin and finally surrendered.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

"Yes," said Mr. Hilborn in his dry way, "we all cherish the Christian belief in the resurrection, but I don't think that our friends are regarding us to death." —W. C. Clark, Reno.

Alexander's Cheerless Lot.

Young King Alexander of Servia's existence is not very cheerful for a lad of 17. He rises at 7 o'clock and goes out riding. Returning, he reads the newspapers—three German and seven French journals—and then gives audiences from 10 to 1. The afternoon is spent in more audiences and transacting state business, with the exception of a short drive. At 5 the king presides at a ministerial council. Dinner follows, and by 11 the lights are out in the palace.—London Standard.

Postal Savings Banks.

The postal savings bank system, which is already the most popular form of investment in England, has been brought to still higher perfection. All accounts are kept in the central office in London, and withdrawals are possible only after sending notice thereto. The new arrangement for telegraphic drafts is now so perfect that depositors in the neighborhood of London can collect their money at the branch postoffice within 40 minutes, or in the most distant parts of the kingdom within an hour of making the demand. The new facilities are already leading to a great increase in the amount of deposits.—London Standard.

UNDER THE DOME.
Mr. Newlands in His Committee—He Goes on Record for the Workingman.
(By C. D. Van Duzer.)

Two of Mr. Newlands' committee assignments are of importance to our interests. As a member of the Mines and Mining he is taking a most active part and legislation bearing his name will soon be on the statute books of great value to the entire West. As a member of the Arid Lands Committee his extensive knowledge of this question makes him its most valuable member. As a committeeman he is always on hand and is a hard worker, gathering and presenting valuable statistics to the committees. On any committee day he is to be found at the Capitol at 10 o'clock.

HIS MINING BILL.

The bill introduced by him last fall has been constantly before the committee. He has received communications from all over the West and given the matter in all its bearings deep thought, and co-operation with the assistance of other western mining men on the committee measure is being formulated that will in all probability be brought before the House in the future.

IRRIGATION.

Yesterday he amended Sweet's bill by providing for an examination of the Humboldt river, in Nevada, and was appointed on a sub-committee to formulate a bill for that purpose, the provisions of which your correspondent will furnish you next week.

MORE WORK AND MORE PAY FOR THE LABORER.

In the House last Saturday Goldzier of Illinois offered the following resolution:

"Resolved by the House of Representatives, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are requested to report to this House their reasons for reducing the pay of skilled laborers in the District from $1.50 a day to $1.40 a day; also if a like resolution has been offered or is in contemplation in the remuneration of other employees of the District."

Mr. Goldzier said: "Mr. Speaker, the object of this resolution is simply to get a little information for the House. The newspapers proclaimed yesterday that the District Commissioners have seen fit to reduce the wages of unskilled laborers in the District from $1.50 to $1 a day. Now I desire to know, and I think it is important for this House to find out for what reason this has been done. If it is on the ground of economy, then, I for one, think that the economy ought to begin somewhere else, and that there are thousand of employees of the District who could bear a reduction in their wages much better than unskilled laborers working at $1.50 and $1.25 a day. I am against retrenchment when it takes bread out of the mouths of the poorer classes. If this reduction has been made because the District authorities desire to take advantage of the present sad state of affairs which crowds the labor market and makes a laborer because he needs bread accept work or attempt to get work for less than he would ordinarily receive, I do not believe that the District ought to go into that kind of business. I have always opposed the idea which prevails among wealthy corporations, that when ever anything hurts them the class which should first feel this harm are the poorest paid laborers. I do not think that the United States ought to follow in the line of the capitalistic corporations. I am a 'Coxeyite' to the extent of believing that $1.50 a day is little enough pay for ten hours work. I move the adoption of this resolution."

Mr. Cannon of Illinois—"Let me ask the gentleman a question, by way of suggestion for amendment; Why not make the resolution broader and extend the inquiry to all the Departments touching all laborers employed in the United States?"

Mr. Newlands said: "If I may be permitted a single remark, I wish to suggest to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Goldzier) that this inquiry be extended and we inquire into the effect of the retrenchment on the part of the United States Government upon the general condition of labor throughout the country. I believe that this is a time for extravagance, not a time for economy. I believe it is the time when the man of wealth, the man of capital should employ all the labor that is within his command. I believe it is a time when the Government of the United States, the richest organization in the country, having its hands upon the wealth of every man, through the power of taxation, should liberally expand the public funds so as to sustain the labor of the country whilst it is suffering most. It is the time for the extension, not the suspension, of the public works. I ask the gentleman, therefore, to extend the inquiry so as to take in the general effect of the retrenchment inaugurated by the Democratic party upon the interests of labor in the country at large."

The resolution, after a point of no quorum raised by Kilgore had failed, was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

HOW HE FELL FROM GRACE.

Reporting Was Too Exacting, So He Became a Hotel Keeper.

'Yes,' said Michael Angelo Tracy, 'I once was a newspaper man, long before I ever thought of hotels and diamonds. It was in Toronto that I made my debut, also exit. My first assignment was to report an inquest. Now, my paper was edited in short, condensed, breezy style, and everything was boiled down. This fact was impressed upon me by the city editor when I went forth in quest of news. Well, I behaved like a good fellow at that inquest and brought it in a column of matter. The editor read it over with a mingled air of amusement and disgust, and then, laying it aside, said, "This is all very nice, Mr. Tracy, but we would like to know the verdict." I had written a column and left out the only piece of news in the item. You can imagine my emotions.'

'My next assignment was to report a meeting of the Sons of England, a Tory organization. Now, I was a Liberal and vice president of the Young Men's Liberal club of my native city. The Sons of England were all Tories and bitter opponents of my party. I had hardly taken my seat at the meeting and was preparing to take notes of the proceedings when I was recognized by a Tory acquaintance, and a howl went up that one of the enemy was among them. Instantly the Sons of England rose in a body and demanded that I be put out. I explained to the excited assemblage that I was only at the meeting in the capacity of a reporter, and that I didn't intend to be thrown out. None of the Sons of England present seemed to relish the job of ejecting me, and I remained throughout the meeting. I didn't relish my experience, however, and on my return to the office I told the city editor what had happened. "Oh, that's nothing," he said. "You will get used to little things like that. I didn't agree with him, however, and that is why I am in the hotel business now instead of reporting suicides and pink teas in my native land."—Louisville Commercial.

A City Without a Woman.

Maiwatchin, in Mongolia, close to the borders of Russian Siberia, is the only city in the world peopled by men only. The Chinese women are not only forbidden to leave this territory, but even to pass the great wall of Kalkan and enter into Mongolia. All the Chinese of this border city are exclusively traders, and they accumulate money till their trading with Europe through Siberia has created a sufficient fortune to enable them to return to their native cities and live there in ease with their families. Their dwellings indicate their prosperity. They are separated from the street by a clay wall, rather ugly, it is true, but surrounding generally a very elegant looking house, before which are gambling those sleek looking, plump cues, with unusually big eyes, such as are pretty faithfully represented on Chinese vases and screens. The main part of the houses of Maiwatchin is divided into two compartments, and that which is behind is raised. Fires are kept up under this great platform, which is covered with mats that serve as seats by day and beds by night. Opposite the door a niche is generally seen where the domestic idols unaccustomed to attitudinizing to profane eyes, repose behind an ornamented blind. The walls of the reception room are lacquered in red or black and sometimes covered with figured silk, according to the wealth and taste of the owner. The apartment overlooking the court is generally of light wood, perforated and carved, and over these openings colored paper is stretched, producing something of the graceful effect of stained glass. The idol temples are gorgeous buildings.—Chicago Tribune.

Life In Other Worlds.

The fact has been established that the supposed diamonds found in meteorites near the Canyon Diablo, in Arizona, are actually such. This is a matter of profound interest, indicating as it does that such stones exist on other planets. Some authorities assert that diamonds—like coal, which is so nearly of the same chemical construction—could not possibly come into existence without previous vegetable growths to generate their material. For this reason, they infer that the finding of the stones in the meteorites proves that there must have been vegetable life in the place whence the meteorites came. If there was vegetable life there, it is a fair presumption that there was animal life also. All this may be untrue, but it affords the first guess glimpse ever obtained into the greatest problem that mankind has ever attempted to handle—namely, the question whether life exists in other worlds than ours.—Philadelphia Press.

Irrigation by Dog Power.

Manuel E. de Costa, who resides six miles south of Sacramento on the Riverside road, has built an ingenious machine for irrigating his flower garden and his orange and lemon trees. It consists of a wooden wheel 10 feet in diameter and with a rim, or tire, about 2 feet wide. A dog is placed inside the wheel, which is turned by his weight as he gallops in treadmill fashion. The revolution of the axle turns a crank which operates the handle of a pump set in a dug well. After half an hour's exercise the dog is taken out and a fresh dog put in for another half hour. The dogs seem to enjoy the work, for they bark and wag their tails when they are brought to the wheel. They know that it means something good to eat at the end of the half hour's work.—Sacramento Bee.
